

ANIMAL FATS INCLUDING INEDIBLE TALLOW AND LARD

Effective December 27, 2001, MAFF suspended importation of any animal fat including tallow, lard, etc. if they contain more than 0.15% impurities. Japan requires a health certificate stating that the maximum level of impurities is 0.15%.

Veterinary Services must see laboratory results for each shipment stating that the product does not contain more than 0.15% impurities.